Results

Your results are displayed immediately below your search term. If you have searched in the 'Main catalogue' tab you will see catalogue records of items in the Library's collection that match your search term:

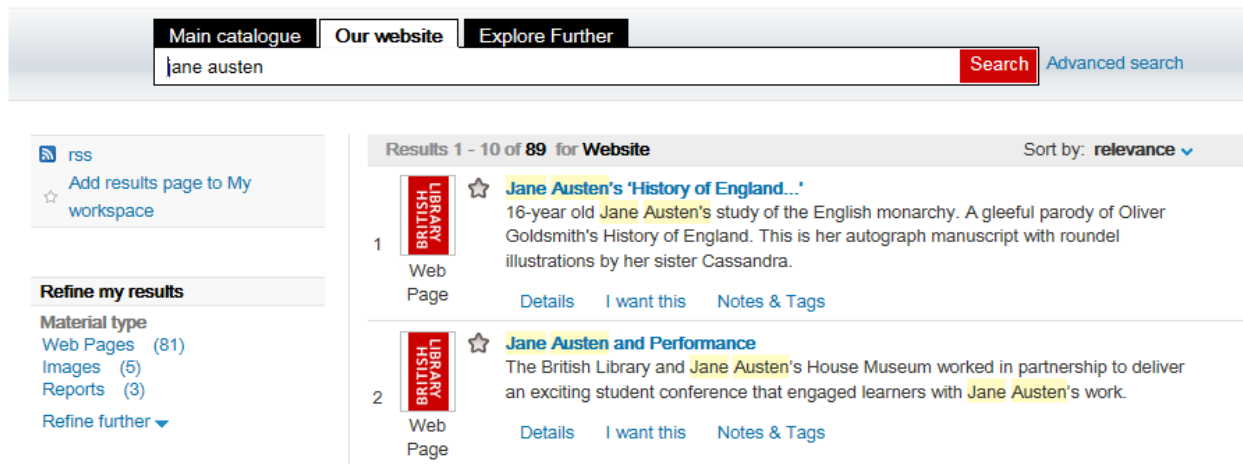

The screenshot shows the search interface with the 'Main catalogue' tab selected. The search term 'jane austen' is entered in the search box. The results are sorted by 'relevance' and show 2,269 results. The first two results are:

- Jane Austen (Recording) by Daiches, David, 1912- (speaker, male). Includes an audio icon and links for 'Details', 'I want this', and 'Notes & Tags'.
- Jane Austen / Marghanita Laski (Book) by Marghanita Laski, 1915-1988. Includes a book cover icon and links for 'Details', 'I want this', and 'Notes & Tags'.

On the left, there are options for 'Refine my results' including 'Access Options' (Request to Reading Room, Purchase a copy, Online: Reading Room only) and 'Material type' (Web Pages, Images, Reports).

If you have searched in the 'Our website' tab you will see records for British Library web pages that match your search term:

The screenshot shows the search interface with the 'Our website' tab selected. The search term 'jane austen' is entered in the search box. The results are sorted by 'relevance' and show 89 results. The first two results are:

- Jane Austen's 'History of England...' (Web Page). A 16-year old Jane Austen's study of the English monarchy. A gleeful parody of Oliver Goldsmith's History of England. This is her autograph manuscript with roundel illustrations by her sister Cassandra.
- Jane Austen and Performance (Web Page). The British Library and Jane Austen's House Museum worked in partnership to deliver an exciting student conference that engaged learners with Jane Austen's work.

On the left, there are options for 'Refine my results' including 'Material type' (Web Pages, Images, Reports) and a 'Refine further' dropdown.

If you have searched in the 'Explore further' tab you will see records of scholarly items that match your search term:

Refine

Unless you have done a very specific search, you will probably get a number of items in your results list. You may want to reduce these. In most cases, there's no need to carry out a new search you can use Refine to narrow down your results. The Refine options are on the left-hand side of your screen, and will differ depending in which tab you have searched:

There are a number of Refine choices available:

Access Options (only seen after a search of the 'Main catalogue')	Useful if you are only interested in items you access in a particular way – for example, online only.
Material type	Useful if you're only interested in a particular type of material, for example, books.
Author/Contributor	This includes editors.
Subject	In the 'Main catalogue' this is most useful for items published within the last 30 years or so. NB: Earlier records, in the main, will not include subject information.
Creation date	Usually publication date.
Language (not seen in results from 'our website')	Useful if you're interested in books specific languages. Please note: this information is not available in all item records, so you will often see the term Unspecified .
Publisher	Useful if you want to limit your search to a particular publisher.
Genre Options (only seen after a search of the 'Main catalogue')	This information is not available for all item records.
Journal Title Options (only seen after a search of the 'Main catalogue')	Only relevant for Article records.
Additional Features (only seen after a search of the 'Main catalogue')	Useful if you want to limit your search to article records with or without an abstract.
Collection (only seen after a search of 'Explore further')	Limit to records from a particular collection.

Not all of the refinements in each list are displayed. Where more refinements are available you can expand the list:

Note: Refinement options are generated by the records found as a result of your search terms; different options will display for different search terms.

Show only

If you search 'Explore further' two additional options for reducing the number of results are available, immediately above the Refine options:

Show only

Full Text Online (1,252)

Peer-reviewed Journals (15,800)

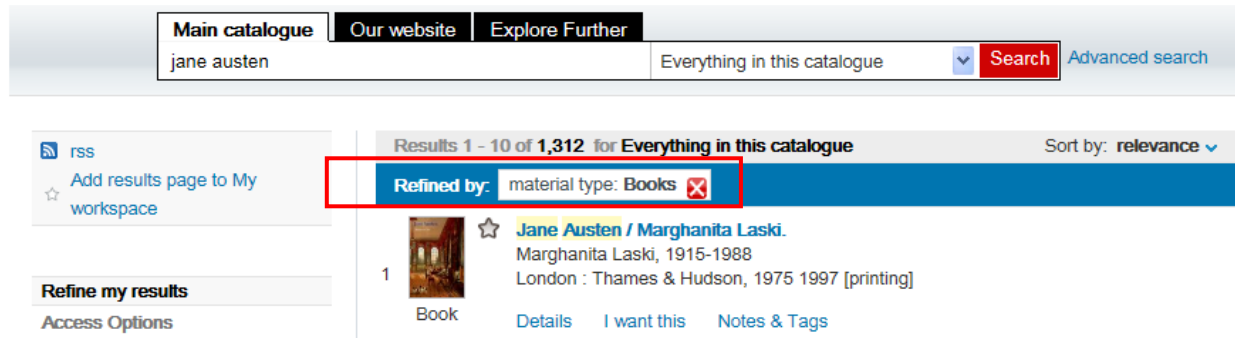

If you select 'Full text online' you will only see those records where full text is available online. Selecting this refinement removes those records with no access to full text.

Note: The access to full text may be due to a Library subscription, in which case the content can only be viewed by registered Readers using the Library's PCs in our Reading Rooms.

If you select 'Peer-reviewed Journals' you remove all journals that are not peer-reviewed.

How do I know which terms I've used to refine my results?

As you refine by the different options, you will see your refinements appear in a coloured bar above your results list:

You can keep refining until you get the number of results you want.

How do I delete these refinements?

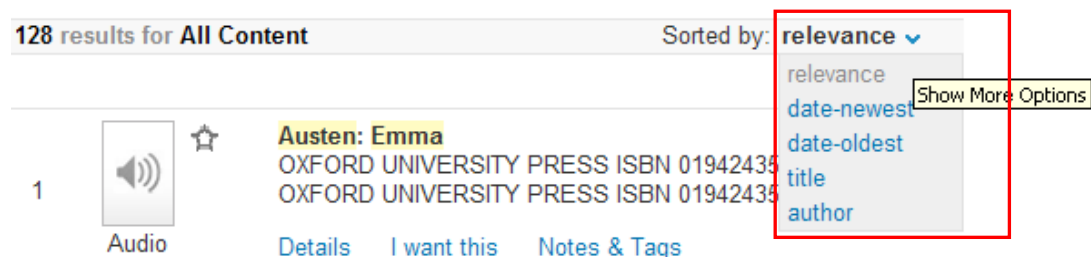

Click on the red cross  next to any of the refinements to remove them. You can remove any refinement at any time, regardless of the order in which you added them. This will change your results set. To get back to your original search results, simply remove all the refinements.

Sort results

The default sort is to sort by relevance but there are other sort options available to you. Additionally, you can sort by:

- Date- newest
- Date-oldest
- Title
- Author

To change the order in which your results are sorted, click the down arrow at the side of Sorted by relevance:

Note: Sorts are 'sticky'; if you have chosen to re-sort your results by title, for example, when you carry out your next search this too will be sorted by title unless you re-select a different sort.

Note: The rules governing grouping of related resources in a results list can adversely affect the date sorting of a list of results.
