

Writers Forum publications in the British Library

The British Library has perhaps the greatest collection in the world of publications by Writers Forum, the publisher of experimental poetry founded by the poet Bob Cobbing (1920-2002) in the early 1950s. The press is especially but not exclusively associated with sound and visual poetry.

As well as books Writers Forum has been responsible for the magazines And (Holdings: 2-5, 7-11; Shelfmark: ZA.9.b.2079) and Kroklok (Complete set: ZA.9.b.2457).

Other libraries which have significant collections of Writers Forum publications include The Poetry Library and the Little Magazines, Alternative Press & Poetry Store Collections of University College London.

Writers Forum Finding List

This is a finding list of publications held by the Library dated from the earliest in the collection, published in 1959, to 2004. It is arranged latest first. In some cases a precise date has not been identified and has either been guessed or simply left as undated. These undated items are listed in a short section right at the end. In each year the references are arranged alphabetically by author.

The list is provided for guidance: newly acquired items will be added to the Integrated Catalogue, from which this list has been derived.

Apart from scrolling through the list, readers can locate items by using the "Find" function in their web browser, putting in title or name details as appropriate. Alternatively, all these publications are available via the Library's Integrated Catalogue and can be consulted in the British Library's Reading Rooms.
