SUMMMER SCHOLARS

The Eccles Centre exists to support and promote creative research and lifelong learning about the Americas, through the world-class collections of the British Library. This summer, join us for our digital Summer Scholars series, featuring two live Zoom lunchtime events and six blog posts, to find out more about the recent research our awards have supported.

Monday 19 July

Summer Scholars LIVE: Adrian Edwards on King George III's Americana | Rebecca Slatcher on North American Indigenous languages in print

Friday 23 July

BLOG: Timothy Peacock on photographic records and post-war nuclear testing

Monday 26 July

BLOG: Richard Price on Inuit story cycles and creative research

Friday 30 July

BLOG: JS Tennant on Columbus and the idea of Cuba

Monday 2 August

BLOG: Louise Siddons on radical solidarities and Akwesasne Notes

Friday 6 August

BLOG: Pola Oloixarac on uncovering the Amazon

Monday 9 August

BLOG: Rebecca Goetz on the English in the colonial Caribbean

Friday 13 August

Summer Scholars LIVE: Amanda Bellows on transatlantic Black rights activism | Jodie Collins on Labour movement pamphlets

To join the live sessions, which run 12.30 –13.30, visit bl.uk/events to register. You can read these blog posts, and many more, on the British Library's Americas collections blog at blogs.bl.uk/Americas.
