1. PARLIAMENTARY PUBLICATIONS

Following the death of General Franco in 1975 and the transition to a democracy, the first democratic elections were held on 15 June 1977. A new Constitution was approved by referendum on 6 Dec. 1978, and came into force 29 Dec. 1978. It established a parliamentary monarchy.

1.1 Parliamentary proceedings

Spain currently has a two chamber legislature known as the Cortes Generales (General Councils) comprising the Congreso de los Diputados and the Senado. There is a semi-federal system of regional government based on 17 autonomous communities, each with its own parliament and government.

All series back to the proceedings of the Constituent Assembly in 1977 can also be found online via a searchable database on the Congreso de los Diputados' website [<http://www.congreso.es/>].

Publications issued by the Congreso de los Diputados are printed on white paper, those issued by the Senado on salmon pink paper and those issued by the Comisiones Mixtas (Joint Committees) on green paper.
